

WRITING ASSIGNMENTS
FST 376 AMERICAN CINEMA 1927-1960

PROFESSOR TODD BERLINER

FALL 2018

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

Cite all of your sources of information. Failure to cite sources is plagiarism.

Prepare your papers using MLA formatting and style. Click here to go to the Purdue Online Writing Lab, which explains MLA format and provides examples.

On the Blackboard site for this course, you will find sample papers—exemplary work written by students in previous courses.

Submit your written work as an email attachment (MS Word documents only) by the due date indicated in the course schedule. The title of your documents should start with your last name (e.g. “yourlastname_paper.docx”). I will comment on your work using the “track changes” feature in MS Word and email the document back to you.

Some Advice:

- Ask yourself the most urgent of all academic questions: So what? Or, to put the question more delicately, Who would want to read what I'm writing?
- I care about the specificity of your ideas, the precision and vividness of your analyses, the originality and ambitiousness of your project, and, in particular, the clarity and validity of your thinking and prose.
- Above all, tell the truth. Don't say anything you don't believe. Don't say anything you don't understand. Don't hunt for “the answer.” Look at the truth and don't assume it will be either exciting or nugget-like or important or similar to the kinds of things you are used to finding (or putting) in artworks when you study them. The truth is usually good enough and always better than its alternative.

MOTION PICTURE PRODUCTION CODE REPORT

Students will write a brief report (2-4 pages) on the correspondence between a film studio and the Production Code Administration (PCA) concerning one American film released between 1927 and 1960. This assignment is designed to give you experience conducting archival research, dealing with primary texts, and explaining historical events to readers unfamiliar with them.

Select a film that satisfies the following five criteria:

1. It was released between 1927 and 1960.
2. We are not seeing the film in this class.
3. You have seen it (or are willing to see it before writing your report)
4. The film is included in the Hollywood, Censorship, and the Motion Picture Production Code, 1927-1968 Database.
5. The PCA had concerns about its content.

To obtain the PCA correspondence about your movie, you will access the Hollywood, Censorship, and the Motion Picture Production Code, 1927-1968 Database, available through Randall Library's catalogue. This electronic database contains archival letters between the studios and the PCA—scanned from the collection of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' Margaret Herrick Library—concerning morally objectionable material in 500 American films (a fraction of the library's PCA correspondence).

To access the database, click here. To see a list of films in the database, click "View All Documents." To read the correspondence about an individual film, type the film title into the search box, and press "GO." [Alternatively, go to Archives Unbound at <http://libcat.uncw.edu/record=b2409057~S4>: click "UNCW users Search subscribed collections": click "Proceed": click the "BROWSE COLLECTIONS" tab: click "Next" (second page). You will see the database listed there.]

After reviewing the database's documents on your film, report on the correspondence between the PCA and the studios, explaining the PCA's objections, the changes requested, and any studio response.

Organize your report as follows:

- Introductory paragraph: Summarize the correspondence, including the timeframe, participants, the film discussed (including date of release), the studio involved, the main areas of PCA concern, and your conclusions about how the parties resolved the concerns. Be specific.
- Subsequent paragraphs: Synthesize the main concerns of the PCA (sometimes identified in correspondence as "Will H. Hays," "Joseph I. Breen" or "Geoffrey M. Shurlock"), the PCA's directives to the filmmakers, and controversies discussed in the correspondence. Refer to specific letters by date, writer, and recipient (For instance, "In his letter of June 6, 1941 to Jack Warner, President of Warner Bros., Joseph Breen again complains about Joel Cairo's characterization as a 'pansy type' in the script for The Maltese Falcon.")
- Organization: Organize your paper point by point, not letter by letter: After the introduction, each paragraph should explain one controversial issue discussed in the correspondence (e.g. brutality, or sexuality, or the depiction of drinking). Summarize and synthesize the issues of concern, one issue at a time; don't give a blow-by-blow of the letters. Remember: One paragraph = one issue.
- Optional: You may also explain how the filmmakers addressed the PCA's concerns in the finished film. Did they skirt PCA objections? What violations, if any, were left in?

You may turn in your report late. Any excuse for lateness, no matter how improbable, will be accepted, up to one week past the due date (After a week, your paper loses 1% point for every half-hour it is late.) Late work will receive no written comments from me (there is no other penalty), but I'll give you verbal feedback if you bring your paper to my office hours.

Checklist: Email as MS Word attachment (title starts with your last name; e.g. yourlastname_MalteseFalconReport.docx) by noon on the due date.

FILM HISTORY RESEARCH PROJECT

Students will complete the following series of assignments:

- A) Individual Conference with Professor Berliner in which you identify a research question that you will answer, a justification of your question, and a methodology for your paper.
- B) Abstract, Paper, and List of Works Cited.

I encourage you to collaborate on these assignments: Other people are far less likely than you are to buy the ideas you are selling. If you collaborate, come together to your conference and submit one copy of your paper with all of the authors' names.

The assigned readings and movies in the course offer only starting points for your research. To write an original essay, you must know what has already been written about your topic. You must therefore consult scholarly books and articles, films, and other materials (such as movie reviews, popular articles, or scholars on campus) outside of those assigned. But I don't want book reports: The background research you conduct is merely background research. I want original research and analysis. Familiarize yourself with existing scholarship on your topic and add something truthful, insightful and original to it.

Everyone's project must engage with American film history within the period 1927-1960.

Paper Topics

Formulate your own research question within the parameters of one of the following three topics:

- 1) What was the effect of film regulation on one group of Hollywood films of the studio era (e.g. gangster films, films that depict gay characters, films that depict brutality, films with sex, etc. You decide the grouping)? Research the impact of the Motion Picture Production Code on your group of films. Using the Hollywood, Censorship, and the Motion Picture Production Code Database, study the correspondence between the PCA and studios about your films. And examine the films themselves to understand filmmakers' creative treatment of objectionable subject matter. Tip: This topic is for students who want to go deeper into the PCA archives and compare PCA correspondence on film scripts to the films themselves.
- 2) Examine a distinct cinematic technique from one period within the studio era (e.g. artistic devices for integrating sound during the 1927-1931 period; montage sequences in the 1930s and 1940s; deep focus cinematography, voiceover narration, or flashbacks in the 1940s; location shooting in the 1950s). What are some exemplary instances of the device? What accounts for its emergence, development, or popularization at a given time? Did technological advances make it possible? How did industry conditions affect its prevalence? How did the use of the device change over time? Tip: This topic is for students who want to watch a lot of different movies from one period within the studio era and read some of the history of that period.
- 3) Trace the development of one American film genre during the studio era (1920s-1950s). How did the genre change during this period? What are some exemplary developments in the genre? You might focus on the development of just one convention (e.g., the "climactic gunfight" in the Western, the convention of "bursting into song" in the musical, witty dialogue in screwball comedy). You must explain the industrial, technological, and/or historical conditions that guided the genre's development during the studio era (For example, how did HUAC stifle the progress of the social problem film?). Tip: This topic is for students who want to get deeply in one genre, watch lots of movies that span the studio era, and read about a genre's development.

Optional: If you wish to write on your own topic, rather than one of the topics above, supply me with a prepared (one paragraph) description in my office hours by September 27. Email won't do; we must have a conversation. (This meeting is separate from your conference with me, which will occur later.) Your topic must involve research on American film history during the period of this course. I will decide whether you may write on your own topic based on whether it seems feasible and relevant to the course, and you seem prepared to write about it.

A) Individual Conference

Come to your conference with typed answers to the following five questions. Bring two hard copies, one for each of us to take notes on.

1. Which of the topics above are you writing about? 1, 2, or 3? Easy.
2. What specific question is your project answering? Within the topics listed, you must formulate a specific (narrow) question to guide your research, something related to the history of American cinema of the period. (Tip: A question ends with a question mark. Don't come in with a thesis.)
3. Why is your question worth answering? Justify your question. Don't tell me why you want to write about your topic; nobody cares. Instead, explain why your reader should want to read your paper. How will your approach to the topic reveal something that readers will want to know.
4. What is your methodology? How will you go about finding answers to your question? You need a detailed plan: What movies will you watch and what will you look for in those movies? What kinds of texts will you read and what will you look for in those texts?
5. What film history research will you conduct? In one way or another, every paper for this class must answer the question, "Why did that happen then?" So how will you research the ways in which industry conditions at the time shaped whatever aspect of American cinema you are writing about? How are you going to talk with the past?

Notes

- Conferences will last 25 minutes.
- I want to see you taking notes during our conference. A lot is going to happen there, and you won't remember it all.
- If at some point you significantly change your topic, you must schedule another conference, prepared again with typed answers to the five questions above.

Checklist: I have two typed hard copies of answers to the 5 questions above, with the authors' names listed at the top
 I am prepared to take notes.

B) Abstract, Paper, and List of Works Cited

Your final paper presents your research findings and analysis. It includes the following separate parts:

- 1) Title Page, Byline, and Abstract. An abstract briefly articulates your paper's conclusions (i.e. your thesis).
- 2) Essay. A discussion of your findings, organized according to a series of points (supporting theses) with discussions of the evidence in support of the points. Use MLA in-text citations.
- 3) Works Cited. A list of all of the print and online resources cited in the paper, organized alphabetically in MLA format; do not include film titles in this list.
- 4) Filmography (optional). A list of films cited in the paper with appropriate reference information. Separate your filmography from your Works Cited.

The length of your paper should be determined by how much you have to say and how efficient you are in saying it.

You may turn in your paper up to one week late; however, late papers receive no written comments (there is no other penalty). After a week, your paper loses 1% point for every half-hour it is late.

Checklist: Title, byline, and abstract on a separate Title Page
 Essay with MLA in-text citations
 Works Cited page in MLA format
 Filmography (if you have one) on a separate page
 Email as MS Word attachment (attachment title starts with your last name, e.g. yourlastname_paper.docx).

SUGGESTED BOOKS AND DATABASES FOR YOUR RESEARCH PROJECTS

Books

- Balio, Tino, ed. The American Film Industry, second edition (Madison: U of Wisconsin P, 1985)
- Balio, Tino. Grand Design: Hollywood as a Modern Business Enterprise, 1930-1939 (New York: Scribner, 1993).
- Balio, Tino. Hollywood in the Age of Television (Boston: Unwin Hyman, 1990).
- Berliner, Todd. Hollywood Aesthetic: Pleasure in American Cinema (New York: Oxford UP, 2017).
- Bordwell, David. Reinventing Hollywood: How 1940s Filmmakers Changed Movie Storytelling (Chicago: U Chicago P, 2017)
- Bordwell, David, Janet Staiger and Kristin Thompson. The Classical Hollywood Cinema: Film Style & Mode of Production to 1960 (New York: Columbia UP)
- Cameron, Ian, ed. The Book of Film Noir (New York: Continuum, 1993)
- Cameron, Ian and Douglas Pye, eds. The Movie Book of the Western (Studio Vista, 1996)
- Crafton, Donald. The Talkies: American Cinema's Transition to Sound, 1926-1931 (Berkeley: U of California P, 1997).
- Dixon, Wheeler Winston. American Cinema of the 1940s (New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers UP, 2005)
- Doherty, Thomas. Pre-Code Hollywood: Sex, Immorality, and Insurrection in American Cinema, 1930-1934 (New York: Columbia UP, 1999)
- Doherty, Thomas. Hollywood Censor: Joseph I. Breen and the Production Code Administration (New York: Columbia UP, 2007)
- Feuer, Jane. The Hollywood Musical (Bloomington: Indiana UP, 1982).
- Fischer, Lucy. American Cinema of the 1920s (New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers UP, 2009)
- Gomery, Douglas. The Hollywood Studio System: A History (BFI, 2005)
- Hark, Ina. American Cinema of the 1930s (New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers UP, 2007)
- Karnick, Kristine Brunovska and Henry Jenkins, eds. Classical Hollywood Comedy (New York: Routledge, 1995)
- Keating, Patrick. Hollywood Lighting from the Silent Era to Film Noir (New York: Columbia UP, 2009)
- Lev, Peter. The Fifties: Transforming the Screen 1950-1959 (Berkeley: U of California P, 2006).
- Naremore, James. Acting in the Cinema (Berkeley and Los Angeles: U of California P, 1988).
- Naremore, James. More Than Night: Film Noir in its Contexts (Berkeley: U of California P, 2008)
- Neale, Steve, ed. The Classical Hollywood Reader (New York: Routledge, 2012)
- Maltby, Richard. Hollywood Cinema, Second Edition (Malden, MA: Blackwell, 2003).
- Mahar, Karen Ward. Women Filmmakers in Early Hollywood (Johns Hopkins UP, 2008)
- Pommerance, Murray. American Cinema of the 1950s (Rutgers UP, 2005)
- Prince, Stephen. Classical Film Violence: Designing and Regulating Brutality in Hollywood Cinema, 1930-1968 (New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers UP, 2003)
- Prince, Stephen, ed. The Horror Film (Rutgers UP, 2004).
- Schatz, Thomas. Boom and Bust: The American Cinema in the 1940s (New York: Scribner, 1997).
- Schatz, Thomas. The Genius of the System: Hollywood Filmmaking in the Studio Era (Pantheon, 1988)
- Schatz, Thomas. Hollywood Genres: Formulas, Filmmaking, and the Studio System (Philadelphia: Temple UP, 1981).
- Silver, Alain and James Ursini. Film Noir Reader (New York: Limelight Edition, 1996).
- Sklar, Robert. Movie-Made America, revised edition (Vintage, 1994)
- Staiger, Janet, ed. The Studio System (New Brunswick, NJ: Rutgers, 1995)
- Thompson, Kristin and David Bordwell. Film History: An Introduction (New York: McGraw-Hill, 1994).

Databases

- FST 376 Library Resource Page
The Randall librarians have put together a resource page just for this class.
- Film Studies Resource Page
Randall library webpage for film studies.
- Hollywood, Censorship, and the Motion Picture Production Code, 1927-1968 Database
See information above.

WorldCat

To find books on your topic, use WorldCat.org, which seeks to catalogue every book ever written. Once there, select “Books” and type your search words. Use Randall library and Interlibrary Loan to obtain whatever books you find listed on WorldCat.

Interlibrary Loan (ILL)

Every student must sign up for a free Interlibrary Loan \(ILL\) account through Randall Library. ILL allows you to obtain books, articles, chapters, and films unavailable in Randall. You will need ILL to collect resources for your paper. It can take a week or two to get a book or film, so order early. The library will send you a notice when something you’ve ordered arrives.

TEN NOTES ABOUT STRONG THESES (AND SUPPORTING POINTS)

Since your supporting points should also be theses, these notes pertain both to your main thesis and to each of your supporting points:

1. A thesis is a statement to be demonstrated or proved.
2. A thesis is not just what the paper is about (the thesis is not the “topic” of the paper); a thesis briefly and explicitly states the paper’s conclusion. (“The use of low-key lighting in Touch of Evil” is a topic, whereas “Touch of Evil’s low-key lighting makes some of the characters’ faces appear distorted and grotesque” is a thesis.)
3. Your thesis is the result of your research, not the starting-point. In its final form, the thesis is the last thing you come up with before you write your final draft.
4. Your thesis should make complete sense to readers on its own. Readers should understand the paper’s thesis without reading anything but the thesis. (Unclear thesis: “The first fight scene in Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon makes the spectator feel the impact of each blow.” Clear thesis: “During the first fight between Jen and Yu in Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon, the dynamic changes in distance of framing, angle, and height mimic the often furious and quick movements of the characters and give the audience a sense of constant motion.”) The rest of the paper will set about convincing readers of what you are saying, but readers should understand your thesis before you try to persuade them of it.
5. Your thesis should be specific and complex enough to sustain the paper. Specific and complex theses tend to be more interesting than general and simple ones, and they are more likely to require explanation and persuasive argument. A rule of thumb regarding specificity: Make sure that what you say about your movie could be said only about that one movie (not many movies).
6. Write about your movie as a movie; don’t write about what the movie is about. In other words, don’t use movies as an occasion to discuss other issues. (Thesis that is not about movies: “We can see the importance of intimacy in romantic relationships by studying the depiction of romance in film noir.” Thesis about movies: “Film noir depicts romance as dangerous by surrounding sexually alluring female figures with imagery that evokes feelings of danger and mystery.”)
7. Your thesis must be demonstrable. Your job is not merely to tell your reader what you think: Your job is to persuade your reader to think what you think.
8. Your thesis should not be obvious. If we know and agree with your thesis before we read your paper, what’s the point of reading (or writing) the paper?
9. Your thesis should be true. If you don’t believe what you’re saying, your reader won’t.
10. Before you hand in your paper, ensure that your thesis statement, as well as each of your supporting points, is a statement to be proved or demonstrated (a conclusion) that is clear, specific, demonstrable, not obvious, and true. If so, then your points are in excellent shape.