

Sample Abstract:

Einstein, Albert. The Principle of Relativity, Luitpold-Gymnasium,
Munich, Germany.

Abstracts should be short, concise summary of the problem, the methods used, and the main results and conclusions. It quickly conveys to the reader what your paper is about so that the reader can decide whether the paper should be read further. It should be no longer than 50-100 words and each idea occupies no more than one sentence.

Other links:

http://employees.oneonta.edu/ebertjr/what\_is\_an\_abstract.htm

http://www.library.ubc.ca/scieng/chem121/module4/module4\_1.html

<http://leo.stcloudstate.edu/bizwrite/abstracts.html> - Shows and example

http://www.wisc.edu/writing/Handbook/presentations\_abstracts\_examples.html More examples