IV. PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Present-UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT WILMINGTON
1989 Department of Political Science Wilmington, North Carolina

Professor of Political Science Promoted to professor in August, 1989. My instructional, research and service responsibilities continue. For the past ten years, I have taught an innovative course to socialize entering freshman to the university. During the Spring of 1998, I served as UNCW's first Director of an Honors Semester Abroad Program. This program was at the University of Wales at Swansea. Today this foreign educational experience is a part of the university honor's curriculum. In 1994, I taught an honors section of American National Government; my students designed, utilized, and analyzed a survey instrument to evaluate public opinion. During Fall Break these students participated in a field learning experience in Washington and Philadelphia. During Fall 1995, with the Director of the University Honors Program, I team taught an Interdisciplinary Honors course in Political Sociology. In the Spring 1996, I developed and taught a "real time" distance learning, interactive, television class. In the Fall of 1992, I was an exchange faculty member at Kyung Hee University in Seoul, Korea. I served 1990-91 and 1989-90 as chairman of the University's Committee on Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion. Currently I am on the manuscript review board of Southeastern Political Review and provide commentary to local and state media in the areas of my political expertise.

1989-1984 UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT
WILMINGTON Department of Political Science Wilmington, North Carolina

Associate Professor of Political Science

During our national celebration of the Bicentennial of the Constitution, I was projector director for a major grant that provided a series of N. C. Humanities Committee programs that brought national and regional experts to our community for examination of our national constitution. My instructional responsibilities were expanded beyond those listed under the assistant level. I began teaching advanced courses in Foreign Policy and National Security and conducting seminars for the university's Elderhostel Program.

1984-1977 Assistant Professor of Political Science

Instructional responsibilities were American Politics, State and Local Government, and Southern Politics. I developed and direct an internship program for advanced standing departmental majors. Having secured chapters of Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi for this campus; I now serve as faculty adviser to Phi Eta Sigma. Similarly, I am faculty adviser to the UNC-W Chapter of the N.C. Student legislature. I was an editorial consultant for the political science division of Prentice Hall in the areas of National Government and State-Local Government.

1977 U.S. CONGRESS Senate
Washington, D.C.

Legislative Assistant During 1977, I served on the staff of Senator Robert Morgan of North Carolina as a legislative researcher and resource aide. My primary responsibilities were to draft position papers on key legislative issues and write speeches for the senator.

1977-1972 CAMPBELL
UNIVERSITY Department of Government
Buies Creek, North Carolina

Assistant Professor of Government (1974-1977)

Professor of political science in private liberal arts college. My instructional duties included courses in American Politics, State Government and International Relations. I also designed and administered a service-intern project that placed advanced students in experiential work environments in local, regional, and state government agencies and in private organizations, commissions, and offices. My additional responsibilities were to serve as faculty adviser to the Young Democrats Club and Phi Eta Sigma (freshman honor society), and to serve on various faculty committees. I also chaired the Public Affairs Committee for the Triangle Improvement Association, a ten county regional cooperative working to resolve economic, social and cultural problems.

Instructor of Government (1972-1974)

During this period, my instructional responsibilities were the same as those described above. I also organized and directed a series of public lectures, under the sponsorship of the S & H Foundation.

1972-1967 UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND
College Park, Maryland

Research Assistant (1970-1972)

Worked in the Office of University Relations preparing feature stories and news releases; wrote background papers utilizing survey research data for the Chancellor's Office; coordinated the distribution of eight thousand plus copies of Precis, the University's in-house bi-monthly publication.

Graduate Resident Advisor (1967-1970)

Served as counselor and advisor to undergraduate students in the University's campus housing program; supervised the multivalent relationships of young men in cultural, academic and social areas.
