Intro to ille, illa, illud and the –ius declension

- ille = he, she, they (him, her, them, etc.) It also means “that” when used with a noun.
 - ille ad forum ambulat. He (that guy) is walking to the marketplace.
 - ille rēx mē vocābit. That king will call me.
 - illōs vocāmus. We are calling them (those guys).
 - illōs librōs habēmus. We have those books.
- Its forms are like bonus, bona, bonum except in a few places (highlighted in beige below).
- The main difference is that its genitive singular is –ius and dative singular is –i.
