

Hercules vocabulary corrections/additions

Typhon, -onis m = Typhon, a chaos monster afflatus, afflatus M = breath, [here] poison breath cruciatu, -us, m = severe pain exintero = to gut, eviscerate unde = for which reason [in this passage] bobile = [I have no idea, never seen this before, not in dictionary, BUT from the story it should mean something like “from the (horse) stable” (as an ablative)] ammitto = something like, “release” or maybe “divert” – he diverted a river to clean the stables

Abderus = Hercules’ servant (apparently)

Otrera = a nymph

Theseus = an Athenian king trimembris = “three-bodied,” Geryon was a very unusual physical specimen malum, mali n = apple

Hesperides, -um f. pl. = the Hesperides, divinities of evening conspectus, -us m = the view or sight
